Southwestern Oregon Community College is committed to safely reusing, recycling, and disposing of all universal and hazardous waste materials. To accomplish this goal, the college operates a safe and effective program that safeguards the environment and public, student, and employee health. The college's program complies with applicable federal, state, and local rules and laws and incorporates best management practices.

SWOCC functions as a "Conditionally Exempt Generator" (CEG). This designation aligns with the mutual expectations and practices outlined in the SWOCC Chemical Hygiene Plan, Hazardous Waste Plan, and Emergency Operations Plan. The documents guide the procurement, storage, and disposal methods and exemplify environmental commitments.

The universal and hazardous waste management program is maintained by the Facilities Department in collaboration with the Director of Emergency Management and Campus Safety and is reviewed and updated on an as-needed basis.

A copy of the universal and hazardous waste program and additional information can be found on the college's risk management webpage.
